Grandvalira in the Pyrenees

The village of Soleu is at an elevation of 1,710 metres (5,610 ft) above sea level and the top of the ski area is at 2,580 m (8,465 ft). The gondola from the village rises to 2,250 m (7,382 ft), where the ski and board schools as well as restaurants are located. From there, it is possible to ski to the top of the El Tarter gondola or the village of El Tarter itself via the blue-rated 'gall de bosc' run.

Grandvalira is the largest ski resort in the Pyrenees. It is situated in the east of Andorra and has more than 200 km of slopes. The Grandvalira ski area offers village to village skiing, great bars and clubs, an assortment of restaurants, ski schools, reliable snow, modern snowmaking facilities, and a variety of groomed terrain. Andorran resorts are known for their high level of slope maintenance and grooming.
